MSU-CELC PRACTICE Test #2: English Writing Ability

INSTRUCTIONS:

For this section of the test, a proctor will give you a special answer form. Make sure that your name appears correctly on the front of the form.

Using a Number 2 pencil ONLY, write as much as you can, as well as you can, in an original, 35-minute composition on ONE of the two topics below.

1. In some cultures, a young couple must always get their parents' approval before they get married. This approval extends to the person their child might marry, and even the family the person comes from. In other cultures, parents no longer are consulted to this degree. In fact, the couple may not ask their parents' opinions at all. Which do you believe is a better policy – to consult with one's parents, or to ignore their wishes? Be sure to support your opinion with reasons and explanations. Feel free to express your own point of view.

OR

2. Many schools have classes during the fall and spring followed by a long vacation in the summer. However, some schools are now considering a plan to have classes year round (including during the summer), but with more frequent, shorter vacations. Which approach makes more sense to you, and why? Be sure to support your opinion with reasons and explanations.

Permission to go out

Brianna has written an email to George, talking about a conversation she had with her parents about going out at night. She has included you on the email as well. Read the email and George's response and answer the questions that follow.

Thursday

Dear George,

I don't even know how to start, but I don't think I'll be able to go to Sara's party on Saturday. I had this long argument with my parents about going out at night. They want me to be home at ten. Isn't that ridiculous? I mean, that's when the party gets started, but my parents just don't understand how things work! Everyone else is allowed to stay until midnight at least. I'm the only one whose parents are so authoritarian. I guess it's kind of my fault, too. If I hadn't come home late the last time when we met at Ben's house, my parents probably wouldn't have an issue with me going to Sara's party. But since I messed up last week, now they are trying to set some boundaries.

What my parents are really worried about is that I would drink alcohol or smoke. I said that I would be responsible even if some kids did drink, but they still think coming home early is the best way to keep me out of trouble. Anyway, I needed to write to you to get this off my chest. Maybe I'll still come to the party even if I have to be home early. I'll see.

Until tomorrow,

18

20

22 Brianna,

You might be surprised to hear that I had a similar discussion with my parents! They want me to be home by eleven, so I'd only have another hour after you have to leave. I don't get it either! We are both turning sixteen next year. We aren't kids anymore! And I told my parents that Sara is celebrating her seventeenth birthday, so most of her friends are around our age, and they are all allowed to stay until midnight—if not longer. It's so embarrassing to have to leave a party early.

I think I'll try to talk to my mom one more time. She is usually easier to talk to about things like this than my dad. Hopefully we'll be able to find a compromise. I'll keep you posted on that. And if nothing changes about our parents' decisions, we can just do something else together, maybe going to the cinema—to watch an early evening show. ☺

Talk to you soon,

36

A friend of yours is interested in visiting the state of Michigan in the U.S. and has sent you the information below. Read it and answer the questions that follow.

When you visit Michigan, don't forget Traverse City

The first thing that comes to most people's minds when they think about Michigan may be Detroit and automobile manufacturing. Or, maybe it's the Great Lakes. However, there are also notable tourist attractions in Michigan that are not as well known. For example, there are inland lakes for boating and fishing, and orchards and wineries for great fruit and award-winning wines. In particular, Michigan's "west coast" along the shores of Lake Michigan offers many recreation sites. One of the most popular is Traverse City.

Traverse City is located on Lake Michigan, or, more precisely, on Traverse Bay. While that means cold winters, it also means late evening sun in the summer when sundown comes just after 9:30 pm. The best known view of the stunning summer sunsets in the city is on top of the tenth story of The Park Place Hotel. The city itself offers a pedestrian-friendly downtown with over 150 shops, galleries and restaurants. Visitors can try a downtown restaurant, and then go to the Williamsburg Showcase Dinner Theater to listen to live music or to watch a theater performance.

The Traverse Bay area offers 180 miles of beautiful sandy beaches and picturesque lakeside villages along a coastline dotted with lighthouses. Hikers can enjoy spectacular views of lakes, forests and wildlife. Grand Traverse Bay is 32 miles long, and is divided into two "arms" by a narrow peninsula extending north from Traverse City. The bay is great for fishing, water skiing, boating, sailing, and swimming. For the fisherman, there are also nearby inland lakes, the beautiful Torch Lake and Elk Lake, which lie due east of the bay. Torch Lake is narrow, but 22 miles long. This is a water lover's paradise. And, of course, one can join a charter fishing trip onto Lake Michigan. In the summer months, golfing in the Traverse City area is also very popular. The state of Michigan has over 800 golf courses, and more than a dozen of them are located within 20 miles of downtown Traverse City, and another dozen within 30 miles.

During the winter, people in Michigan can enjoy both cross-country and downhill skiing in the Traverse area. In fact, the beautiful winters in Traverse City are a major reason why people say that the state of Michigan is a "Winter Wonderland!" In sum, Traverse City offers many outdoor recreation opportunities, fabulous hotels and clubs, and an environment where you can just enjoy time away from home in a scenic location. In any season you choose, you can have a wonderful time in Traverse City, Michigan!

Email

Your classmate has recently written an essay about using email for one of his classes and wanted to share it with you.

2 The invention of the Internet has changed the world. One of the biggest changes it brought to the world is that email has become one of the most favored means of communication.
4 A 2008 survey showed that there are about 1.6 billion email users worldwide—that’s more than one out of every five people. The large number of email users is an indication of the innumerable 6 advantages it has. Despite its advantages, it has also brought some problems that bother the user every day.

8 Indeed, there is a long list of benefits email has made available to people, and the list is becoming longer as the brilliant IT people are developing new ways to use it everyday. The 10 advantage that tops the list is probably its convenience. With just one click, you can reach anyone in the world at any time you want, and the recipient of your message can access it 12 whenever and wherever he/she needs to. So using email brings convenience to the sender as well as the recipient of the message. Also, you can send the same message to as many people as 14 possible if it applies to all of them. The second advantage is that it is cost efficient. Sending an email does not involve any cost, unlike other means of communication such as making a phone 16 call or sending a letter by post. The third advantage of email is its versatility; that is, it can serve the user in many different ways. For instance, through some email services, not only can you 18 send messages, but you can also chat with people if they are on your contact list and appear as logged in on the interface of your account. In addition, you can use it as a storage device given 20 the large capacity of some email services. It would cost a lot to purchase a storage device with the same capacity such as a USB drive (alternatively called thumb/flash drive). Personally, I keep 22 an “email copy” of everything I consider important in addition to saving it on a disc as well as on the hard drive of my computer.

24 Like everything else, email has its problems. To me, the biggest disadvantage is that messages can be misunderstood or misinterpreted because of the lack of facial expressions and 26 gestures that are critical to successful communication. This is especially true when the message is exchanged between people who are not familiar with each other. Another disadvantage of email is related to its convenience: because it is convenient, people often don’t bother to 28 communicate in person even if they are next-door neighbors. As a result, people miss out on opportunities to practice their social skills. Other disadvantages include receiving junk emails 30 and virus-spreading emails that paralyze your computer, the loss of handwriting skills, and the feeling, whether real or false, that one is missing vital communication when access to the 32 Internet and/or a computer are unavailable.

34 While email has flaws, no one can deny its strengths. In my point of view, if something has more advantages than disadvantages, it should be encouraged. Given this, I vote for the use of email.

Sun Safety

Just before the summer holidays, you receive this pamphlet on staying safe in the sun.

Sunny days are part of what make the summer months so pleasant, and many people like to spend hot days enjoying the seashore. Not only that, but sunlight is necessary to help your body produce Vitamin D, which is important for good health. But too much ultraviolet (UV) light can seriously damage your skin over the long-term.

These days, most people know that too much sun can be harmful, but many people still don't take proper precautions. In fact, many people don't even know how to protect themselves effectively! By following the advice below, you can enjoy your time in the sun while keeping your skin healthy for many years to come.

Cover Up

If you are going to be outside for a long time, it is a good idea to wear clothing that covers as much of your skin as possible. But that's not the whole story; if you can see sunlight through the material of your shirt, UV light can also pass through and harm your skin. Generally, a t-shirt gives less protection than medium-strength sunscreen lotion. Recently, some companies have started making laundry detergents that can actually increase the protective strength of clothing.

Wear Sunscreen

If you are going to be in the sun, it is important that you wear sunscreen. Make sure you read the label carefully before you choose a sunscreen. The level of protection is described using a sun-protection factor (SPF) number. Doctors recommend using a lotion with an SPF of 15 or higher. Nowadays, it is possible to buy lotion with an SPF of up to 100, but no matter how strong the lotion is, you should apply it every two hours.

Wear Sunglasses

Spending long hours in the sun without protection can cause long-term damage to your eyes. Sunglasses do not have to be expensive, but they should have a label that says they provide 100% UV protection. If there is no label, assume that the glasses do not offer any protection. It does not matter if the lenses are dark, because an invisible chemical provides the UV protection. In fact, dark lenses without protection can be even more dangerous because the eyes open wider to let in light, which lets in more harmful UV radiation.

Be Careful During Midday Hours

UV rays are the most intense between 10 o'clock in the morning and 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Try to limit the time you spend outside during these hours. Be especially careful if you are at the beach, because both sand and water can reflect sunlight, magnifying the effect of exposure to the sun.
